

Grandma's Weekly Newspaper

Welcome Back

6/19/2024

Hello everyone! You may have noticed that it has been a while since the last Grandma's Weekly Newspaper... but we are back at work to make some more articles! We will not be posting the old articles on the website (🤖 a website?) but all new articles will go onto the website.

Now about the website, Andrew has made a website for all the articles to go onto so you can easily access them. To access the website go to "<https://grandma.andrewcromar.org/>" or just type in "andrewcromar.org/grandma" to get to it. When you are at the homepage of the website you can see a list of all the articles on the website. You may notice 2 bars at the top of the page as well, each of those bars has different buttons you can use. The first bar has a few buttons to navigate around the website and the second bar has a few buttons to change the website's theme. When you are on a page of an article, if it is too hard to read you can use the "read as PDF" button to open the pdf.

This may seem like a bit of a shorter article but don't worry, this is only the first of many to come. Also it might be a bit till this one gets sent out because Andrew has to make sure everything about the website is working, so that might be why the date is off.
